Exporting citations to EndNote from the Library Catalog

1. Make an EndNote account. If you do not already have one, see our “Endnote Web” tutorial.

2. Find your book in the catalog, and click the “Export to EndNote” link on the left side of the screen.

3. A .ris file should download to your computer – for example, “WorldCat_611964141.ris” – if does not, click “Save”, and choose a location and filename. Note the location of the downloaded file.

4. Log into EndNote Web.

5. Hover your mouse over the “Collect” tab, and then click on “Import References.”
6. Click “Browse.”

7. Find the .ris file on your computer, and click “Open.”

8. Select “Refman Ris” from the Import Options menu.
9. If you wish, select a group for your citation using the “To:” dropdown menu.

10. Click Import.

11. You should see the following screen:

   Clicking the hyperlinked group name will take you to your folder.
12. Clicking the hyperlinked title of your reference will take you to the reference.

13. See the “EndNote Web” guide for instructions on exporting citations to a bibliography or reference list.
